COLLABORATIVE AND PUBLIC PROJECTS

2023 Paint Night

What happens when artists go to paint night? As a means to return to the world after covid two artists started going to paint nights. These 2021 & 2022 paint nights offered a low/no pressure space to create as they gained their footing again, and immersed in community in a fun and creative way. They then invited other artists to create all the same Paint Night paintings and exhibit them together. Consider this a painterly game of telephone! How will each person respond? Which artwork will you choose to riff off of or remix? Collaborators: Sara Kaltwasser, Gallery CA, additional artists TBA.

2019 Portraits at the Pratt

Public workshops facilitated on site at Enoch Pratt Free Library neighborhood branches. Participants brought photos of loved ones that were added to ceramic tiles as decals to create mosaic portraits. The finished pieces were on display at the Pratt branch before going home with the maker or given as a gift.

Collaborators: Enoch Pratt Free Library, Maryland Institute College of Art

2012 Text It!

We use text messages to communicate quickly and immediately to our family and friends. What if we were also able to do this to a larger audience – to our neighborhood, community, the public? This project in partnership with Tinges Commons facilitated a series of text pieces painted on a sign board in the Better Waverly community. Suggestions for the sign were accepted from any and all community members that wanted to participate and were painted weekly from April – July, 2012.

2010 Odd Beauty: Signs of Absurdity and Elegance Within

Co-facilitated project with Graham Coreil-Allen. Collaboration between middle school students and artists. Installation of signs on Tinges Commons, a community garden and art space in Baltimore City.

Collaborators: Youth Dreamers, Tinges Commons, Graham Coreil-Allen, Colin Benjamin and John Bylander.

- It is Not Ok/I Can

Installation based project in which participants complete the phrases “It is not ok...” and “I can...” Installed in multiple venues including empty storefronts in downtown Baltimore, the Stadium School, Maryland Institute College of Art’s Brown Center and at the Wide Angle Youth Media Festival.

Collaborators: Youth Dreamers, Maryland Institute College of Art Graphic Design Department, J.J. Clarke Enterprises, Wide Angle Youth Media, public.

2009 Joy Banners

Facilitated project in which students from the Youth Dreamers, their parents, and patients of Shepherd’s Clinic designed banners for the Joy Wellness Center with the theme, “What does Joy Mean to You?”

Collaborators: Youth Dreamers, Youth Dreamer parents, Shepherd’s Clinic, Shepherd’s Clinic patients, Joy Wellness Center, Baltimore Office of Promotion and the Arts.

- Youth Dreamers Mural, Baltimore MD

Designed and painted mural in the Youth Dreamers Youth Center.

Collaborators: Youth Dreamers, Youth Dreamer Board, Youth Dreamer parents.

- 105 – 115 E. Baltimore Street, Baltimore MD

Organized two art exhibitions in the windows of 5 vacant buildings in downtown Baltimore.

Collaborators: Youth Dreamers, J.J. Clarke Enterprises, Mr. Ghee, Lara Emerling, The Stadium School.

- Kirk Avenue Banners, Baltimore, MD

Project in which students in the Youth Dreamers Live Out Loud summer program designed banners that were installed on Kirk Avenue as part of James W. Rouse Community Service Day.

Collaborators: Youth Dreamers, Struever Bros., Eccles & Rouse, Baltimore City.
