McKenzie Elizabeth is a self taught artist and photographer living and working in Baltimore County. In 2013 she started a small illustration business, taking family portrait commissions from clients around the globe. In 2015 she published her first children's book called "The ABCs of Homesteading." McKenzie runs an online shop selling art prints, original paintings, and screenprinted linens. She also sells her work out of local shops like Trohv and at annual markets such as Bazaart and Holiday Heap. This is her full time profession. As a working artist, she aims to make her art affordable, relatable, and conscientious of social justice issues.
