

GLIMPSE journal blog

the art + science of seeing

The Collages of Anna Fine Foer: Mapping the Political, Ecological, Mystical leave a comment »

The themes explored in visual artist Anna Fine Foer's work are diverse and ambitious, and span the spectrum from religion and politics, to ecology and social issues. But while the conversation in each piece varies, they all share a common visual language in that they're carefully constructed, layer upon layer, with maps.

Title: Machtesh, Shetach, Hill, Crater (Topographic demarcations on maps use concentric circles to show geological elevations or depressions; a crater and a hill may look the same. The hill and the crater are placed in alignment with the topographic depiction of the landscape.)

The artist first discovered the technique in an abstract painting class, where instead of paint, she decided on maps as her medium. Her choice of materials was purposeful on a number of levels, as a means to multiple ends. Practically speaking, the visual characteristics lent themselves for use in a variety of subject matters: the color and pattern could represent land, architecture, sky, water. The texture could create the effect of marble on a building. But conceptually, it opened many doors for the artist as well.

As Fine Foer understands it, "A map is an abstraction that we accept as standing for a place." In speaking with GLIMPSE, she recalled a plane trip to Los Angeles during which she compared an airline-provided map with the terrain below, and found the difference between the two striking. It was a poignant moment in her exploration of maps as an abstraction of place, which could then be manipulated further to construct collaged abstractions of landscape.

GLIMPSE journal blog

About GLIMPSE journal

www.glimpsejournal.com

Follow GLIMPSE

Email »Facebook »Flickr »RSS »Twitter »Glimpse Journal on Facebook

436 people like Glimpse Journal.

Anna

Charlene

Raphaële

Zyrome

Serge

Meghan

faysal

Esther

乐

Georgina

Irina

Ricardo

Facebook social plugin

Recent Posts

Suomi Perspective–Check: Hi-Def View of Our Little EarthVisualizingScientific CollaborationEmotional CartographyThe Collages of Anna Fine Foer: Mapping the Political, Ecological, MysticalFlickr Fave Friday!

Archives

January 2012December 2011

Title: New York Without Us (The book "The World Without Us" was the inspiration for this collage. Layers of the city and the geological strata that are underneath it are in the formation of a well. 2009
$1,000 20" h, 16" w, framed collage)

As the artist's map abstractions date back to 1979, she's witnessed a technological evolution that fundamentally shifts the way people understand and relate to cartography. And as is the case for many artists, it's also offered new methods by which she's able to physically construct her work — methods she embraces, but only to a degree. Reflecting on her workflow, she explains, "It's important to me that it's still very constructed [by hand], that the craftsmanship is still there. I can appropriate and manipulate [the maps] in Photoshop, but that's as far as I want to go." This desire for tangibility directly relates to the artist's stance on cartography in the face of changing technologies in the field; she doesn't use a GIS device for travelling, and worries about the fate of the physical map. But on the other hand, the artist admits that technology has undoubtedly made it easier to find materials, "beautiful, historic maps," by searching for them online.

When it comes to the raw materials, whether their origins are an historic atlas or the web, the artist is in no short supply, and we at GLIMPSE intend to sit back and watch the collection grow.

Excerpt of Anna Fine Foer's Artist Statement:

My artwork is map collage that offers the viewer a combination of imaginary landscapes with mystical, scientific and ecological themes. The visual description of a three-dimensional world on a flat plane is conjoined with the depiction of the metaphysical.

Maps that I incorporate into collages may be part of the regional, geographic, geological or religious narratives; boundaries may have been altered in hopes of furthering certain ends. Usually there is more than one story a map can convey.

My work also has more than one story to tell. I may be trying to both describe the curve of the November 2011

September 2011

August 2011

July 2011

May 2011

April 2011

March 2011

February 2011

January 2011

December 2010

November 2010

October 2010

September 2010

August 2010

July 2010

June 2010

May 2010

April 2010

March 2010

February 2010

January 2010

December 2009

November 2009

October 2009

September 2009

May 2009

April 2009

March 2009

Categories

advertising

Alexander Chen

art

astronomy

attention

biology

Carl Sagan

cartography

chemistry

China Vision \(vols 2.1 + 2.2\)

cinema

color

Color \(vol 2.3\)

Cosmos \(vol 2.4\)

DIY

dreaming

evolution

exhibitions

flickr favorites

gifts

Gliese 581d

Title: Steam Punk Earthquake in Baltimore (20.25" w, 29" h, collage 2011 $1,800)

earth on a flat piece of paper and using maps to blur the boundaries between the natural and the manufactured/technological world, representing simultaneously land, sky, water and architecture.

Be sure to chart your course over to Anna Fine Foer's website, here. And while on your way, why not check out GLIPMSE's latest issue on Cartography, where you'll find more musings on, and celebrations of, maps.

Share this:

Like this:

One blogger likes this post.

Written by Glimpse Journal
December 21, 2011 at 8:47 am

Posted in art, cartography

Tagged with abstraction, Anna Fine Foer, cartography, collage, Crater, fine art, Glimpse Journal, Hill, Machtesh, mapping, New York Without Us, painting, Shetach, Steam Punk Earthquake in Baltimore

« Flickr Fave Friday!

Emotional Cartography »

Leave a Reply

Glimpse contributors
graphic design
hallucinations
history
illuminated manuscripts
imagination
imaging
information visualization
Is the visual political? \(issue 1\)
John Boswell
Kathryn Gray
Kodachrome
light
literature
love
M.C. Escher
Magnilux Adapter
Michael Persinger
music
neuroscience
ophthamology
optical illusions
perception
photography
Pi Day
poetry
religion
reviews
SkyProdigy
supernova
Symphony of Science
technology