I had no history of serious art related interest until I retired from Maryland Police Supply, Inc, a business my husband and I owned. My spare time was taken with volunteer work in a classroom for deaf children in the Harford County, MD public school system and raising two sons.

Watercolor classes at the Senior Center, then non-credit classes at Harford Community College and several workshops heightened my interest in art. Presently I am enrolled in oil painting class in Havre de Grace, MD.

I am deeply involved in Harford Artists' Association and Gallery and spearheaded the relocation of the Gallery from a small cottage to a space in downtown Bel Air, MD. This challenge led to being featured in Baltimore and Harford County publications including "Women of Influence" in The Harford Magazine.
