

I sought to add an emotional message to his artwork, carrying the sentiment that even in hectic and troubled times, there remains a core set of ideas and principles that bind us together as friends, family, and community. Incorporating his gift for combining beautiful color, shape, and texture, he's created a set of ten interrelated paintings that comprise his new Spread the Word collection. Each piece is a unique collage of vibrant colors and words centered around one or two particular themes, such as Love, Respect, Integrity, and Karma. They are meant to be enjoyed for their visual appeal and beauty, but also to foster a feeling of happiness and good will through their words and ideas. In the words of the artist, "I hope by seeing this art, it will remind people to do their part to make the world a better place to live".
