Film Work / Accolades

Bmore Boricuas

Role: Filmmaker / Archivist

Bmore Boricuas is a documentary short I produced that documents the community-driven archival work of Tola's Room, a Puerto Rican home museum and cultural space in Baltimore City. The film follows the Bmore Boricuas Project, an initiative launched in 2021 to document and celebrate the histories of Baltimore's Puerto Rican diaspora—from the 1800s to the present—through oral histories, personal artifacts, and creative expression. Bmore Boricuas offers a powerful reflection on migration, identity, and the enduring legacy of Puerto Ricans in Baltimore, using storytelling as a means of both preserving history and honoring the contributions of Baltimore's Boricua community. I have done the archival and preservation work for the cultural project itself, as well as filming and conducting each interview.

Sight & Sound's Emerging Voices Recognition 2024 & Best Video Essay 4x      Role: Filmmaker

"May Santiago's video essay on Aubrey Plaza is a sharp, beautifully edited piece that pulses with energy and thoughtfulness. Santiago's intelligence and skill are unmistakable, and not only in this piece. Santiago's work is vital in amplifying Puerto Rican film and media production, contributing significantly to its visibility and cultural recognition." From:

Sight & Sound's Emerging Voices Recognition 2023

Role: Filmmaker

"A queer Puerto Rican feminist filmmaker, May Santiago's unique voice and perspective makes her a video essayist to watch out for. She will have new work in Alison Peirse's Doing Women's (Global) (Horror) Film History (DWGHFH) project which will be featured in a special issue of MAI Feminism & Visual Culture in 2024. I was lucky enough to see May's practice first hand at Embodying the Video Essay, a videographic workshop in Maine this summer and was blown away by May's spectacularly intricate and layered work. She crafts soundtracks to complement a unique and riveting visual language, combining archive and horror while using herself as narrator and performing subject in front of the camera." From:

BoriCine archival work

Role: Archivist / Curator

As part of my dissertation, I have compiled a centralized, accessible, and inclusive archive of Puerto Rican cinema. I have digitized many colonial films about Puerto Rico that have been neglected over the years in many US government archives. I have also collected rare films made by Hollywood, foreign, and "native" production companies. The digital archive that is still in progress can be accessed here: <https://www.youtube.com/@boricine/videos>. I am currently programming many of these films for a groundbreaking film series on Caribbean cinema that will be held at Old Major in Baltimore, Maryland.

Dissertation film series*Role: Director / Editor / Writer / Curator

As part of my dissertation, I am in the process of creating essay films that directly tie to my dissertation topic, which explores the content of Puerto Rican films, their identity, and the archive of films overall.
