

“Snoozing Sun”

A plastic children's toy with an x and y pulley system controlling a metal cone dragging across an aluminum powder coated piece of glass just feels right.

There are so many crippling variables

Which makes the process start with a mistake, and then the need to adapt.

Reminds me of painting